

How Many Believers Does It Take?

You are my army of one. Though I have heavenly hosts at my commend, I choose to make myself known though you My army of one. Though the enemy comes in masses, I stand with you individually that the victory can be yours, though I stand behind you will all the forces of heaven. Therefore you must be ready to stand alone in this world, though there are hosts standing with you in the Spirit. You cannot rely on another person to be your refuge or your strength, but you must rely on Me alone. It is time for you to be My army of one and be prepared to stand against the fear, confusion, and deception in this world and speak My truth.

The strongholds of the enemy are guarded by the power of deception. For deception is the strongman that holds captive the souls of those who do not walk with me. But it is the destiny of My chosen to shine My light into the darkness. Come to me and I will show you the strongholds in the heavens that bind the minds of the people of this world in these last days. For those that do not seek Me will be carried away by the deceptions that rule through the powers and principalities. Pray that they will seek My truth and repent, for I send you as the Kingdom of Heaven to be at hand. I will use you to bind the strong man of deception that holds them captive. I will use you to be My light of truth that sets the captive free. I will reveal to you My wisdom and My truth, the hidden manna.

How many believers does it take to change a light bulb? Only one. Only you.
